Excerpt: . . . is obviously desirable, in discussing the meaning of our own results, to separate as far as this is possible the finality effect produced by the falling inflection from that which is due to the more definite pitch relations of the tones. I6. We shall first bring together the totals for those simple intervals (Group S) whose ratios do not include a pure power of 2, i. e. , the minor third (5: 6) and the major sixth (3: 5). The second summary will include the complex intervals (Group C) involving powers of 2, i. e. the augmented fourth (32: 45) and the diminished fifth (45: 64). Then will come the eight remaining intervals, all expressible in simple ratios one of whose members is a pure power of 2. These latter it will be convenient to separate into those intervals in which the 2 tone...
