Not illustrated. 1916 Excerpt: .or because of call gone back to Europe that it was suddenly realized that there was a shortage of the supply. This condition caused an acute state, multiplied the difficulty of meeting the demands of buyers by producers, which was reflected in advanced prices. In this spot coal shared partly only, for the advanced price for spot coal--contract coal had been sold for the year at low figures--was in large part due to the demand for foreign account, and for the first time, perhaps, in history coal from the Pittsburgh district was sent to seaboard for export account despite freight handicaps by rail and on sea. HIGH PRICES AT END OF THE YEAR. Uplift of demand for coal continued until the end of the year, and what some called giddy prices were received for spot coal by those who were in position to furnish it--as high as $2.75-$2.85 the ton f. o. b. mines in some instances. The output of mines during the first half of the year was much below what it had been for any similar period since 1908, but the uplift that came along during the second half redeemed the yearly record, and it ended with a tonnage that, generally, was about equal to that of the preceding year with many companies, and with a general increase of about 10 to 12 per cent, for the entire territory, this increase being due in nearly all cases to the increased quantity mined by the...
